BROOKLYN'S DEADLY BOMB.

A MYSTERY WHICH THE POLICE ARE NOT ABLE TO UNRAVEL.

several clues on which to work, one of which is a letter found on top of the parcel delivered at the house. This letter was inclosed in an envelope, addressed like the parcel, "Mr. Wechsler, No. 329 Washington avenue. It covered two sheets of business note paper, ruled with blue lines. It read as follows: ruled with blue lines. It read as follows:

Mr. J. Wechsler.—Sin: I send you a few articles which I have taken from your store dishonestly. I am very sorry for it now, and I sincerely trust that you will not entirely condemn a young man for such an error. If you will be so indulgent as to keep this matter private and not attempt to prosecute me I will repay you for all goods I have taken. I do this on the advice of my uncle wants of the condition of the state of the private and the private and the private and the property of the property of the property of the state of the private and the private an

No. 243 West Fifty-eighth street, N. Y.

The letter was written in ink in an angular hand, the writer evidently intending to make it look like a lady's hand. Several of the words were misspelled, but the letter on the whole was that of an educated person. The defect seemed to be intentional. The latter was undoubtedly written as a decoy to induce Mr. Wechsler to look further into the fatal package. As a matter of fact it had this very effect.

Other clues are afforded by the presence in the box of five printed business cards bearing the name of John A. Lanney, wagon builder, 415 West Eighteenth street, New York. Although they were probably placed there with the express intention of throwing the police off the track they may prove valuable links in the chain. Then there is another piece of writing in the hands of Gept. McKelvey which, he considers, affords a most valuable clue, but he will not give its exact nature. Superintendent Campbell said this morning that he felt confident that the man who sent the infernal machine would be in the hands of the police during the next twenty-four hours.

Two thousand dollars reward are offered for the arrost of the man, and it has stirred the detectives to their best efforts. One thousand dollars are offered by Mr. Joseph Wechsler, and the other thousand by his partner, Mr. A. Abraham.

Mrs. Wechsler's injuries are much more serious than they were at first supposed to be. Both her hands were so terribly lacerated by the pieces of metal scattered by the explosion that they present the appearance The letter was written in ink in an angular by the pieces of metal scattered by the ex-plosion that they present the appearance of jagged masses of raw flesh. Two fingers of the left hand were almost entirely shot away, and the skin is almost entirely shot away, and the skin is shrivelled up by the scattering blast of the explosive. Her face is gashed all over by jagged pieces of glass and metal, and her left eyelid is cut in two. Altogether there are fifteen separate wounds on her face and neck, When Dr. A. Rochester, of No. 2 St. James place, and the heart this worning to dress and neck. When Dr. A. Rochester, of No. 2 St. James place, called at the house this morning to dress Mrs. Wechsler's wounds he found her in the greatest agony. He said that her case is made much more serious by the fact that the virulent acid mixed with the metal and glass had entered the wounds and brought about acute inflammation. He greatly feared that blood poisoning would ensue.

The little boy Philip, who is only eight years of age, had several inches of his scalp torn off by the explosives. His left eye is badly injured and both his hands are severely cut.

An Evening World reporter was shown this morning by Mr. Wechsler into the room where the infernal machine was opened. Only by such ocular demonstration could anything like an accurate idea be obtained of the terrible force of the unknown explosive. The room is in the rear of the second floor and is used as a children's bedroom. The furniture and carpets were completely wrecked. All over the floor were places where the fiery acid had spread, burning the carpet and the flooring in spaces as large as eighteen the fiery acid had spread, burning the carpet and the flooring in spaces as large as eighteen inches square. The pier glass and chandelier globes were shattered, and the bedclothing was so burned as to be useless. Large pieces chipped by the flying pieces of metal from the cornice, the ceiling and the picture frames covered the floor, mingled with the blood of Mrs. Wechsler and the little boy.

Mr. Wechsler is unable to account for the act. He repudiates the theory that it was that of a discharged employee seeking revenge. His statement as to the sequence of events last night is as follows: "I went out for a walk at about 9 o'clock intending to stroll through Washington Park, smoke a cigar, and be back about 9 o'clock intending to stroll through Washington Park, smoke a cigar, and be back in half an hour. I am told that at 9.15 a young man in a district messenger's uniform rang the front door bell. The door was opened by my father-in-law Mr. H. Rossman, who is over sixty years of age and very near-sighted. The pretended messenger boy gave him a parcel wapped up with string, on the top of which were a letter and a card both addressed to me. My wife was then in the rear room on the second floor with my little son Philip. My father-in-law called to her that there was a letter and parcel for me, and at her request he in-law called to her that there was a letter and parcel for me, and at her request he took both up to her. She laid them on the sofa and paid no further attention to them for at least half an hour, during which time she put the boy to bed and read several chapters of a novel. It was not until 10 o'clock that she examined the parcel and came across a paper package containing the plated silver knife, fork and spoon. Seeing these she naturally concluded that the other contents of the parcel were of a similar nature, and had no hesitation in opening it further. The little boy's curiosity was attracted by the clatter of the knife and fork and he got out of bed and stood by her side.

The momental the terrific explosion, which startled not only every one in this house, but caused the people in the adjoining houses to run here in the belief that the house had FOUND DEAD IN A SHOE BOX caused the people in the adjoining houses to run here in the belief that the house had fallen.

"I came in at that juncture," continued Mr. Wechsler, "and was met by one of my sons, who told me that my wife and little Philip were nearly killed, but they did not know what had caused their injuries.

"I at Jonce ran for Dr. Rochester. I shall to-day secure the services of other physicians to consult with him. My wife is forty years of age. and of very strong constitution. I am in hopes that she will recover, although both she and the boy will in any extent be maimed and disfigured for life,"

Capt. McKelvey has learned by inquiry at every District Messenger office in Brooklyn and New York that the messenger who delivered the package was not an employee of any of the companies. None of the companies were called upon last night to send anything to Mr. Wechsler's house.

Mr. Rossman, who received the parcel, says that the messenger was short and slim, and about 20 years of age, but he took no particular notice of him and he is so nearsighted that he is afraid that he would not be able to identify the man. The messenger asked for no receipt, but hurried off as soon as he had placed the parcel in Mr. Rossman's hands.

The fragments of the box which contained the deadly explosive were on Supt. Campbell's table at Brooklyn Police Headqurters this morning. From the heap of splinters remaining the box appears to have been only about eleven inches long, five inches wide and three inches deep, a remarkably small space in which to put three pocketbooks and a machine of such terrible power. The top of the box was furnished with a slide to which was affixed a steel spring. At the lower end of the spring was a sharp, jagged piece of steel which, when the lid of the box was pushed back, was forced against the explosive substance and thus brought about the catastrophe.

The box and its contents were scattered in such small fragrenus that as yet only a near ive substance and thus brought about the catastropha.

The box and its contents were scattered in such small fragments that as yet only a partial idea can be obtained of the composition of the machine. It is known that the box contained many fragment of metal and glass and some powerful acid in liquid form. There are no traces of gunpowder or dynamite, but Capt. Mc-Kelvey found a remnant of what he believes is an exploded piece of gun cotton.

Mr. Wechsler and Mr. Abraham have been in business together in Brooklyn for the past twenty-two years. They employ 1,500 persons. They have never had any trouble with their employees, and, indeed, do not come directly in contact with any but the heads of departments. P. H. NOVA SCOTIA'S FISH INTERESTS. Statistics to be Collected Upon Which Canada Will Rest Her Cases.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] HALIFAX, Oct. 28.—It is reported here this norning that the Dominion Government has divided Nova Scotia into nine fishery distriots, and has appointed nine officials to collect statistics of fisheries this season. These officers are instructed to visit each fishing establishment and to personally obtain from the owners of fishing vessels and packers and exporters of fish statistics of Canadian fisheries. They will also show the importance, extent and value of their shore mackerel fisheries and the traffic conducted previous to the expiration of the Washington treatv with Americans in the sale of bait, ice, provisions and other supplies. Special attention will be paid to the collection of statistics of American cargoes of fish trans-shipped at Port Mulgrave and Shediac and shipped in bond by rail and steamer to American ports. The Canadian case will rest largely, if not completely upon the showing made in the statistics thus compiled. tricts, and has appointed nine officials to

It is known here that for a year past certain navy officials of the Fishery and Customs departments have been engaged in compiling special reports covering the value of the privileges enjoyed by the Americans in Canadian waters during the Washington treaty over and above the half million a year awarded by the Halifax Commission. in the Harlem Police Court this morning, by Mrs. Ann Young, of 201 East Eighty-fifth street, with wringing the neck of a parrot and with gross disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Young said that a gentleman had given her the parrot and that Walker had wrung the bird's neck through jealousy.

Walker said that the parrot had been killed by accident. As to the charge of disorderly conduct, it was stated that Walker went to Mrs. Young's apartments while drunk and kicked the door in. Walker said that could not be possible, as he carried the keys. He said that Mrs. Young had got trust on the pretense that she was his wife. He was held in $300 bail to keep the peace.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] ELMIRA, Oct. 29.—Conductor Raymond, of he Lehigh Valley wild train, reported at an early hour this morning the finding of a man's dead body on board his train, and as the facts became known the affair has created a big sensation. The body had been cut to pieces and packed into a shoe-box. All evi-dences indicate that the package was put on pieces and packed into a shoe-box. All evidences indicate that the package was put on board the train at Elmira.

The conductor reports that he passed over his train at Addison and Corning from the caboose to the engine and that he stopped his train just before entering Elmira and spent some time in switching cars at the Southport yards, just outside the city limits. On going over his train again at Waverly he discovered the box.

The remains are those of a man of middle age. The top of the head has a huge gash across it, and the forehead is badly disfigured, as if a blunt instrument had been used in the murder. The lower part of the face is unharmed. The blood had dried on the flesh and every particle of clothing had been removed to prevent identification. The box was badly spattered with blood, showing that the corpse had been put in very soon after the crime. The arms and legs had been cut off, in order to allow packing in the short box. A coroner was called from Waverly and the body was taken off the train at South Waverly.

When the preaching began the drunken men in the congregation wanted to talk as much as the preacher in the pulpit. The meeting was soon turned into a scene of confusion. When peace and order was restored it was found that Jacob Jackson, an elder in the church, was killed by a pistol ball in the head, and that six others were so badly wounded by cuts in various parts of the body that death will result. About twenty-five persons were badly bruised in the fight. The camp-meeting adjourned without ceremony.

WHO MURDERED HIM?

The Man Found in a Carriage at Chicago Was a Pennsylvania Mechanic.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] CHICAGO, Oct. 29.-It is discovered that the shipped from the East is Charles Ferris, a mechanic of Bridgewater, Pa. From all that can be learned by telegraph Ferris left Bridgewater Sunday night for Pittsburg. He probably got on a freight train to steal a ride to Beaver and got into a quarrel with some tramps, who shot him. A ticket for a reception which was found in Ferris's pocket took place Thursday evening at Bridgewater. Pa. A close examination at the Morgue of the body revealed a wound evidently inflicted by a pistol ball immediately above the right eye. A portion of the forehead was also crushed in as if by a heavy blow, and the base of the skull was fractured from behind. No pistol was found in or about the vehicle.

It is believed that the murder was committed somewhere near Rochester, Pa. The side tracks of the Pennsylvania road there are in a deserted locality, and there would be ample space to stow the corpse away in the carriage by removing the bars of the crate and nailing them in place again. mechanic of Bridgewater, Pa. HARTINGTON WOULD NOT STAND IT.

Inside Reasons for the Remarkable Chang in the English Government's Policy. SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

London, Oct. 29.-These reasons are given for the remarkable change in the policy of the Government: The Marquis of Hartington complained to Lord Salisbury that he was bearing the brunt of the battle while he (Salisbury) was resting in France, and he insisted on the Premier's return. As soon as Lord Salisbury arrived in London the Marquis drove to Arlington House in an ordinary hansom-cab to escape notice, and had two hours' conference with the Premier. He showed how the country was going over to Gladstone, and insisted that unless the proclaimings were stopped in Ireland and the police quieted in London, he would reopen communications with Gladstone and arrange some plan for a settlement of Home Rule and domestic questions. the Government: The Marquis of Hart-

Lord Salisbury asked for time to consider.
He consulted with Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, who counselled him to follow Hartington's advice. He thereupon instructed the authorities in Ireland to stop the proclaiming of the League meetings. Chief Secretary Balfour, raged at being thus baffled in his efforts to show what a strong government in Ireland could do. Home Secretary Mathews at the same time was directed to give orders that the police cease their brutal treatment of the London crowds.

The other condemned men still maintain their self-possession, and affect to look forward with hope to the efforts of their counsel to secure a judgment in their favor from the United States Supreme Court. George Schilling yesterday brought them a cheering message from their lawyers at Washington.

It is noted here as a curious circumstance, that of the many petitions received by the Governor for relief and clemency, there is but a single formal appeal, and that comes from a small interior town in New York State, to which only eight names were attached, one being that of William D. by side for three hours listening to the arraignment of the political machines and the sway of the bosses. The Wheeler H. ham, Carl Schurz, Elihu Root, Joseph H Choate, E. Ellery Anderson and Joseph Pulitzer, created the greatest enthusiasm and each speaker was constantly interrupted by applause and cheering when happy and effective points were made. There were, perhaps, twice as many Democrats as Republicans present, but they forgot their party affiliations, and all were united for Nicoli and Martine, good government and the overthrow of the local political dynasty and the district despots.

The gathering was composed of men who do not usually attend political gatherings. They were voters who are not owned by any party or boss, and who at the coming elec-tion will cast their ballots as American citi zens who wish to protect the fair fame of the city.

The only officeholders who attended the meeting were Assistant District-Attorney Ambrose H. Purdy and Assemblyman Mulry.
Mr. Purdy said he had just dropped in to see what the meeting amounted to. "It is immense," he added, "there is no doubt about that. The people are all strangers to me except the lawyers."

cept the lawyers."

When Mr. Purdy was asked for whom he intended to vote for District-Attorney he intended to vote for District-Attorney he begged the question.

Assemblyman Mulry served in the last Legislature as the representative of Tammany Hall and the County Democracy. He said that he has had enough of boss rule when it dictates the nomination of such a man as Col. Fellows in preference to De Lancey Nicoli. "You can say that I am with the people in this fight," he continued. "The bosses have bowled me out of a renomination because I expressed my honest opinion at the Tammany Convention. They now wish they had taken my advice."

WAGE-WORKERS OUT IN FORCE.

There were thousands of wage-workers at the meeting, and they were as enthusiastic for Nicoll and Martine as their richer fellow-citizens in the audience. The presence of such numbers of workingmen shows that all are enlisted in a cause to protect life, property, liberty and justice.

The prominent citizens and business men who signed the call for the meeting were astonished at the outpouring. Hundreds of the signefs were unable to gain admission to the hall and remained outside or wended their way upstairs where two overflow meetings were being held.

It was the unanimous opinion of all present that as a representative Citizens' meet-certain."

L. Ellwood, whose pen is always busy at the headquarters, said: "While I was not at the meeting, the reports received from it are most encouraging and give assurance of Mr. Nicoll's election. The emphatic indorsement given him there was an indication of the sentiment of the people toward their young candidate, and foretold plainly the result of the election. It meant Nicoll's success."

Mr. Starkweather, who is an earnest worker at headquarters, said the meeting was ex-ceedingly gratifying to the workers in Nicoll's

St. Louis's Encampment Surplus.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
St. LOUIS, Oct. 29.—The local Executive Comlittee of the Grand Army Encampment will have between $8,000 and $10,000 on hand after paying all the bills for the encampment, and are now in a uandary as to what to do with themoney, which quandary as to what to do with themoney, which is a part of $100,000 raised by individual subscriptions. Public sentiment here is for devoting it to securing the Democratic and Republican National conventions next summer and to entertaining the delegates in case the conventions meethere, and to this cause the money will, in all probability, be dedicated. In case St. Louis gets neither convention the money, or what is left, will be devoted to the National Saengerfest, to be held here next year.

Killed Herself with a Table Knife. Barbara Broschart, an old widow, killed herself of 164 Ridge street this morning. She had been sick for years and had spent half her time in hossick for years and had spent half her time in hos-pitals. Only yesterday she was discharged from Bellevue after an attack of a wasting fever that had left her mentally and physically weak. At daybreak her son, who, an hour before, had seen her sound asleep in her bed, found her lying dead on the foor. She had sawed at her throat with a dull old table-knife until she had almost severed the head from the body. She was out of her mind.

The circumstances of the case are that Barrett was escorting his two sisters home, when they were insulicated by the Italian. Young Barrett resented the insult, and was shot and mortally wounded. The sisters appeared in court draped in deep mourning.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] FALL RIVER, Oct. 29.—Globe Village is at fever heat. Sam Jones, who died last August, is now almost nightly seen at his old home. The ghost has been seen by many of the townspeople. It cooks breakfasts and gives the old kitchen stove a shadowy shine. Men have lain in wait nights for the spook, but on these particular nights the spook they longed for never came. No one can be found to live in Sam Jones's house.

POLICEMAN KANE'S DESPERATE FIGHT TO-DAY WITH A RURLY RURGLAR.

John Smith, Caught Robbing a Grocery Store, Takes to His Heels and Defends Himself With His Revolver—The Men Shoot at Each Other For Two Minutes and Neither One Hit-Leader of the "Stable" Gauge

There was a lively exchange of shots upwn early this morning between Policeman G. H. Kane and a burglar who rejoices in the familiar name of John Smith.

Accompanied by a companion, Smith made an attempt to rob the grocery store at One Hundred and Sixth street and Lexington avenue, and, being discovered by Policeman Kane, took to his heels and ran like a deer. The policeman pursued him through Lexington avenue to One Hundred and Fifth street, calling upon the fleet-footed burglar to halt and emphasizing these remarks with pistol shots. After a lively run Smith entered the New York Central Railroad tunnel at One Hundred and Fifth street, and as Kane followed drew a revolver and opened fire on the policeman. The two men spent the next two minutes shooting at each other without accomplishing anything. Then the policeman made a quick bound, and, throwing his full force upon Smith, he sent him sprawling on the ground. He quickly had the nippers afound Smith's wrists, and, having supplemented this treatment by a few well-directed prods from his club, his prisoner became submissive and was safely conveyed to the East Eighty-eighth Street Police Station-oultse, where he was locked up.

Smith is a leader of the desperate crowd known as the "stable gang," which Police Captain O'Connor is determined to break up. Hundred and Sixth street and Lexington ave-

MR. CAMPBELL SHOOTS HIMSELF. Attempted Suicide of a Retired Merchant to

His Son-in-Law's House. Mr. Robert Campbell, aged 65, of 5 Madson avenue, shot himself in the right temple this morning, at the residence his son-in-law, 25 east Thirty-eighth street. Word was received at Coroner's office about 11 o'clock to the effect that he was dying, and when Coroner Eidman arrived an hour later he started at once to take Mr. Campbell's ante-morten statement. Mr. Campbell is a retired merchant and lives with Franklyn W. Campbell, an iron merchant at 160 Broadway. The latter was summoned from his office about the same time that word was received at the Coroner's office that Mr. Campbell had attempted to take his life.

A HEAVY REGISTRATION.

It Means, According to John J. O'Brien, the Election of De Lancey Nicoll.

This is the last day of registration. The reports from the places of registry show an unusual interest is manifested in the election. the books were opened this morn. ing in all the uptown districts there were long lines of voters awaiting to be registered. John J. O'Brien says that every indication points to a very large registration, nearly equal to that of the last presidential year. of the last presidential year.
This is particularly noticable, he says, in the districts inhabited by merchants, clerks, lawyers and Germans, all of whom are attracted to the polls by the excitement cretracted to the polls by the excitement created by the contest for District Attorney.

The heavy registration, Mr. O'Brien thinks, means a powerful vote for De Lancey Nicoll, and, the chief of the Bureau of Statistics added, "De Lancey Nicoll will be elected beyond the shadow of a doubt. Men who generally let an off-year election go by default, are registering this year, and the business men intend to have a voice in saying who shall represent them in the District Attorney's office. That's what this heavy registration means."

The number registered for the three days foot up 190,154, as against 195,125 for the first three days of 1886, 172,635 in 1885 and 208,317 in 1884. The districts that have so far increased their registration over the same days last year are the First, Ninth, Nineteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth. The heaviest falling off is in the Fifteenth and Seventeenth districts. The registration is almost up to the in the Fifteenth and Seventeenth districts.

The registration is almost up to the mark in the Seventh, Eleventh, Thirteenth and Twenty-first districts. There is quite a falling off in the Second, Third and Eighth Districts. It is expected that 60,000 voters will be registered to-day. This would result in a total registration of 250,000.

Remember, this is the last day of registration. Books open up to 9 r. m.
